Mental Health Legal Representation Project (Strathclyde)

provides legal advice and representation to people with mental health problems, acquired brain injury and dementia, their families and carers in the area covered by the former Strathclyde region.

Areas of law dealt with:

- Detention and Appeals under the Mental Health Act. Freephone number available for detained patients.
- Adults with incapacity: medical treatment, Intervention Orders, Financial and Welfare Guardians
- Organising finances: appointees, Powers of Attorney and Financial Guardians
- Community Care – getting the services you need
- Civil Law including Child and Family, Children's Hearings, Reparation, Debt Claims, etc.

Other activities:

The Project publishes leaflets (its most recent being on Powers of Attorney), undertakes research and speaks at, or organises, seminars and conferences. It influences Government policy.

Telephone advice line – Tuesdays 11.00am to 1.00pm, 0141 353 3354.

Objectives and Philosophy

People with mental health problems have legal difficulties which are sometimes compounded by their illness and, as a result, they often do not get the legal help that they need. The Project provides high quality advice and representation which is appropriate for the needs of its clients.

This Project is funded by Glasgow City Council (MISG).
